

Get Press

Speak publicly about the specific value in your library. Are you good at public speaking? Call your local or campus radio talk show or TV news show. Like to write? Write a letter to the editor or an op-ed piece for your local paper, or ask students and faculty to write editorials for the campus paper. However you get in touch with the local or campus press, make sure you've developed your key messages and anticipated tough questions ahead of time; be ready with statistics and information you can rattle off on the spot. To build your skills visit: www.ala.org/advocacy and click on Advocacy University.